Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Friday 03 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Drizzly rain this evening clearing to showers later.

This Evening and Tonight:
Cloudy with rain and drizzle spreading east this evening, then drier for a time before showers arrive during the early hours. The showers will be locally heavy and mixed with hail, and will be blown through on a strengthening wind. Minimum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Saturday:
A mixture of sunshine and showers, these locally heavy with a continuing risk of hail, especially in the west and near to coasts. Feeling cold in the blustery northwesterly winds. Maximum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Drier and sunnier on Sunday and still rather windy. Rain on Monday clearing to showers later. Gales or severe gales possible on Tuesday, with rain followed by squally showers.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.